

Biography:

f’ is a visual artist who traces his research path between exploration and experience.

Through the intricate relationship between humanity and nature, f' examines pressing political and social issues. By synthesizing collective data with personal practice, f' creates poetic and visionary intermedia works.f' investigates how digital episteme shapes social imagery and the perception of reality—examining how technological mediation influences perception across cultural, social, and environmental contexts.

The human body is at the epicenter of f' practice, regarded as both an object of control and a site of resistance, whether in terms of physical mobility or perceptual management. This concern has led f' to intentionally live for extended periods in border regions—places where people undergo profound biographical transformations.

f' artistic approach is grounded in direct action and responsive exchange with encountered realities, realized through participatory, inter-present processes. Complementing this, f' methodology operates through collective intelligence in synergy with professional networks.

Since 2019, f' has been part of the Wurmkos collective and serves as P.M. & Advisor for Recipient.cc.

f' is the founder and artistic director of a2410.it, Carrozzeria Margot, and Mobeel.

f' archive and studio are based in Canzo, Italy.

DESCRIPTION:
Centocapre (literally onehundredgoats) is a year-long community-based participatory project created as a form of historical reconstruction of a collective myth called Centocapre. It takes place in Latronico (PZ) a centuries-old village, like many in these parts of Italy, rich in traditions, stories and characters. "Centocapre is a flow, a moment in the life of the artist and the community together with which the work came to be."[P.R] f' activates a dialogue with the population of the small village in Basilicata and collects faded testimonies, collective stories, tales and fragmentary memories, partly related to ancient events and rituals, of pagan origin where nature is the center and revolutionary origin of every identity. The discovery of some finds is a further foothold for a story that combines invention and interpretation, regenerates ethno-anthropological elements belonging to the local community. The project lasted one year and included workshops with the participation of children and adults, in collaboration with various artists and musicians. The objective was the creation of a collective docufiction film and a parade involving villagers. The climax of the event was the appearance of the turquoise heraldic symbol of Centocapre, projected nightly on the village walls —a vision that will recur for years to come. The resulting work is a multichannel, medium-length film narrating a timeless, "migrant" and "modular" myth.
